Submit Course Profile

Please profile your course to share in the Opened Practices repository. You can submit as many course profiles as you like, one profile for each course.

Remember to submit this form to save your work. You can return to edit your course profiles at any time by clicking on the course profile title in the My Contributions list at the right. If you mess up, prior versions of each course profile are saved and can be viewed or recovered under its revisions tab.

Each course profile has an area for threaded comments at the bottom where you (and other registered users, if it is published) may post comments about your profile.

Before You Contribute

By contributing material to the Opened Practices repository, you agree that you have the right to share the material and are willing to share it under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-Share Alike 3.0 United States License. You can add clarification about how this material is shared under this Creative Commons license in the Copyright Notes field at the bottom of the entry form. Feel free to join the discussion about copyright and licensing at Opened Practices.

Current Author Information

All your contributions to Opened Practices are related to your personal profile, including your contact information below. To make immediate changes to your personal profile, save the entry below first (if you have made changes you want to keep), and then edit your profile. You can always wait and make changes to your personal profile later.
